Professional Experience

Nathalie Subilia is specialised in Employment law. Her employment law practice also leads her to deal with issues of Corporate law.

She advises employers and employees in all aspects of employment relationships such as entering and terminating contracts of employment, staff secondments, transfer of employees, transfer of expertise and collective dismissals. She is also active in employment-related fields such as competition, social insurances and pensions.

She analyses all legal aspects of her cases with her clients and develops strategies in tandem with them.

Nathalie Subilia is a co-founder of Reiser Avocats. She has practised at the Geneva Bar during several years within leading Genevan law firms. In addition to her legal practice, she acts as a conciliatory judge at the Geneva employment tribunal. As part of her judicial duties she strives to encourage parties to find transactional settlements.

Nathalie Subilia has been recognised as an accomplished employment lawyer acting both on behalf of employers and employees by Chambers & Partners, the Swiss newspaper 'Le Temps' and the Swiss magazine 'Bilanz'.
